Vikings game tomorrow

After starting slowly this year the Minnesota Vikings have looked good lately led by star running back Dalvin Cook and veteran QB Kirk Cousins. In fact, Kirk finally got the first MNF win of his career on Monday, but now the team has a quick turnaround when they face the Cowboys. Here's how to watch it live. Source: Android Central Dallas Cowboys (2-7) and Minnesota Vikings (4-5) face off on Sunday in an NFC fight that could end up giving the Vikings a wildcard spot if they're lucky. And while the Cowboys come from a bye week and hopefully have a real plan at quarterback, the bigger the problem will be slowing down speedster Dalvin Cook. It's not all bad in Dallas though, as Garrett Gilbert looked surprisingly good a few weeks ago and almost led the Cowboys to a win against the Steelers. The team would really need a win right now, and maybe they'll get one in Minnesota. Keep in mind that the Vikings are a solid 8-point favorite at this point, and have put much more positive footage on tape suggesting they are up for the challenge. Kirky finally won on Monday night, Dalvin running as hard as ever, and Dallas has an incredibly young defense that is still trying to learn as they go. We stopped making latex on the eyes and neck to be able to show the development of age. Hey, she's a grandmother now. What will happen in the final season of the Vikings?
